Master of Science in Education (MSEd) in Science and Bilingual Education (Grades 7-12) is a 33 credit program designed for students who have attained an initial certification in Biology, Chemistry, Earth Science, or Physics (grades 7-12) and are themselves proficient in a Language Other Than English (LOTE) who wish to gain professional certification as secondary science teachers as well as a bilingual extension.

The program provides coursework in education, science education and bilingual education as well as guided field experiences to prepare these teachers for the special challenges of teaching science to English language learners who are bilinguals in mainstream as well as bilingual classrooms. The 33-credit course of study required leads to professional certification in either Biology, Chemistry, Earth Science, or Physics (grades 7-12) as well as the New York State Bilingual Extension (7-12). A total of 50 hours of fieldwork experience is required.
